Miller, L. (2015) Creating Components Using Revit Architecture 2015. Searcy, Arkansas

2013 – LEETS eResource & Emerging Technologies Summit

About the Conference: Mississippi State University Libraries is dedicated to hosting top quality conference opportunities for academic libraries. For more than a decade the MSU Libraries hosted the MidSouth eResource Symposium, along with pioneering discussions about applications of new technology in libraries with the Emerging Technologies Summit. Both conferences experienced growing popularity and attracted a national following. Building on that success and finding common ground between the two conferences, the MSU Libraries relaunched them in 2012 as the MSU Libraries eResource and Emerging Technologies Summit (MSU LEETS).

ACADEMIC COMMITTEES AND SERVICE

UNIVERSITY COMMITTEES

Information Technology Advisory Committee (ITAC), 2015-Present

Advises the Provost and Executive Vice President and the Academic Deans Council on instructional technology policy and priorities, including the operation of university units supporting instructional technology. The committee is expected to monitor the needs for, progress of, and the competitive position of the use of instructional technology in the programs of the university. Where appropriate, the committee should recommend goals and objectives, resource allocation strategies, support personnel and services, organizational structures, and exemplary instructional technology projects. Appointed by academic deans for three-year terms.

Teaching Evaluation Committee, 2015-2016

Chair

Committee reports to: Provost and Executive Vice President

Recommends instruments, procedures, and policies relating to evaluation of teacher

Emerging Technology Working Group, 2014-2015

Treasurer

Working Group, collaborating with faculty from Engineering, Interior Design, Art, Building Construction Science, and the Entrepreneurship Center, that discusses current issues related to technology, specifically technology for making. The focus of the group is to serve as a link for faculty across campus who have similar interests related to technology. The group has established unified methods and means for students' access to equipment and technology for making, across campus.
